Defense-Foreign Policy Problems Beset Legislators

WASHINGTON (A)-Congress returns from an Easter vacation Monday to start the last half of a session beset by problems of a slumping economy and space-age defense-foreign policy issues. With the fall elections just over the horizon, the legislators will have to decide what to do about taxes and spending, foreign aid and trade, reorganizing the nation's vast military establishment, and a host of other questions. Many of the issues are seeded with far greater controversy than the antirecession measures on which the Democratic - controlled House and Senate largely concentrated in the first three months of the session. There are signs too of a stiffening resistance by President Eisenhower and his advisers to some of the proposals being pushed by Democrats to stimulate #### business and employment.

Truman To Testify However, additional antirecession measures will claim the immediate attention of the Senate and House as members reassemble after their 10-day recess.

Protect their precious future now

Like most young fathers, as soon as your children were born, you probably began to think more seriously about your family's future. You began to plan how you could make sure that they would have a secure home and an education, even if something should happen to you.

The time when children are young, however, is usually the time when the family income is far from ample . . . and the cost of the usual permanent insurance may look quite large. That is why Metropolitan has developed a special life insurance policy called the RPG-5.

This simply means that reduced premiums are guaranteed for the first five years. When the five years are up the premiums will increase to the level where they will remain for the life of the policy... but this increase may be offset by future dividends. So here is an opportunity to get the full, permanent form of protection that your family needs . . . at a lower initial premium rate which may better fit your budget. This is a perfect policy for the family man whose income hasn't quite caught up with his talents. It has all the cash and loan values that make permanent insurance such a wise investment. Call your Metropolitan Representative today and ask him about the RPG-5. He will welcome the chance to explain this valuable policy . . . and to show that

Weakness Of Pump-Priming

Where the final emphasis will be in federal efforts to combat slow economic times-whether in reduced taxes or in a vastly expanded public works program-has not yet developed. But the thinking of students of government is largely toward a tax cut, skillfully applied to produce maximum stimulative results.

As for vast public works programs, Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois points out that they are hard to complete during recessionary times for which they may be designed and that they tend to be self-perpetuating.

Similarly, Douglas goes on, suppliers of materials and services come to think that they, too, have a vested interest in public works in good times and bad. "Once the government starts a program of expenditures," cautions the Senator, "it builds up tremendous pressure groups. These groups resist having the programs turned off in the automatic way that economists prescribe.'

In commenting on the make-work approach to invigorating the national economy, President Eisenhower said:

"It is not effective. Experience shows that too much of this sort of make-work activity tends to supplant rather than to supplement private activity. It dulls the edge of private initiative. It builds up a huge bureaucracy. And it threatens to turn a temporary recession into a long-term economic headache.'

These arguments are the more forceful in light of the spending of many billions of dollars for public works during the depression 1930s. Despite that, 10 million persons remained unemployed until World War II started a new

Foreign Cars

The American automobile industry has generally taken the position that it required no tariff because it had no competition from foreign cars. It so of this giant industry. completely dominated the American market, which is the world's prime market for automobiles, that it required little more than advertising to be successful. Nevertheless there have been over 100 automobile manufacturing companies in the United States, of which only four or five remain. I look at a list of the officers of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers in 1911 and they represent the Pierce-Arrow, the Locomobile, the Pope-not one of which remains in the business today. The Packard, which was a fancy car, sold for as high as $5,750. There were plenty of cheap cars to meet every pocketbook. The cheapest and best-selling car was the Ford.

However, the American car is giving the appearance in 1958 of having outpriced itself even in the American market. A commodity is outpriced not when accountants, statisticians and economists say that it is or it is not, but when the consumer decides to look for something else. All sorts of European cars are being brought into this country, built in Europe by European labor and using European materials, paying European taxes, but some of them employing American capital and, to a degree, American management.

Let us read the facts about the advertisement of "The Unique Opel Car." It says that this is "From German Skills and German Ingenuity." This is "a General Motors car designed and built in Germany" and is "Sold and Serviced in U. S. Only by Authorized

There is nothing objectionable or wrong about any of this, except that the automobile industry is one that has been hardest hit by the current depression. Neither Walter Reuther who runs the industry from the labor unions nor American automobile management seems to care anything about the danger of the foreign car invasion which is growing by leaps and bounds. Reuther is so busy being a statesman that he is missing the fact that what his workers need is work, not running the Democratic Party; management is set in its ways and undoubtedly is in need of a

The large American automobile companies, faced by the necessity of using blocked currencies abroad, naturally invested their money in their own industry. They took over European automobile companies. When labor costs and taxes outpriced the American automobile in world markets, it proved to be very good business to manufacture in lower wage and lower tax countries for export purposes. The British Ford, Opel, and other European cars made considerable progress in world markets. Now Russian cars are coming in, priced according to local market conditions.

As the principal cost in manufacturing an automobile is the labor cost, cheaper wages can always defeat higher wages, particularly if the quality and the styling are just as good or better. Walter Reuther recently came up with a gimmick program, not very profound, to reduce the cost of the American car, but he said nothing about reducing wages or abolishing some of the costly union restrictions upon automation which are characteristic of this industry,

The results are beginning to show. Look at the cars roll by. Notice that one that looks different from any car you are accustomed to. It's a Volkswagen, a German car, becoming increasingly popular throughout the world because it is cheap to buy and cheap to run. When it first appeared in America, it was said that it would never get anywhere because it is too small for the American figure and personality. However, it is doing surprisingly well in this market.

And now the Rolls Royce, queen of cars, traditionally only for millionaires, and also traditionally looking like an ancient dowager gazing upon plebeians through her lorgnette is being made up in form and shape to look like an American car, fit for the pretty girl who is dressed accordingly.

Yes, they are all coming in and the foreign cars have their showrooms on Park Avenue in New York, ready for American customers, to compete with American wages and American taxes. And some of these cars even have American subsidies, through

"We have given all kinds of support to the oil companies. We have practically supported the country of Iran. There is no reason why we should have them tell u. what to do.

Problems In The Car Industry's Control Tower

DEARBORN, Mich.

In a patch of green countryside not yet engulfed by the industrial-suburban sprawl, the glass, marble and metal tower springs cleanly upwards, elefunctional, aseptically pure. And in the tower's topmost rooms, where the wide windows offer an enormous view. there are the adjoining offices of the two men who guide the destinies of the Ford Motor Co., Henry Ford II and Ernest

You enter with a lively curiosity, for here, surely, is one of the control centers of the faltering American economy. The first thing that strikes you is the odd contrast between the two leaders

It is Ford, the inheritor of the empire, who has the look of shrewd practicality that you expect in a self-made man. Whereas Breech began life as a blacksmith's son and started his vertiginous upward climb as a cost accountant. Yet it is Breech who allows an occasional visionary gleam to illuminate his conventional executive briskness. The topic is the problems of the motor industry, the governor of the American economy, in a period of disturbing economic pause. At Ford's request, Breech leads off with a short historical review, culminating at the moment when the post-war seller's market turned into a buyer's

When we sold eight million cars in 1955," says Breech with decisive frankness, "it made the whole industry think that maybe the ten-million-car-year was coming before too long. So everyone decided more new plants were needed than were really needed, and started out building all those

"Maybe buying habits are changing," he says reflectively, in the sense that Americans nowadays want a lot of other things besides good automobiles. But they still want to own better cars. Take that housing development over there-(He points into the enormous view, to the beginning of the industrial-suburban sprawl). I can still remember the thrill of pride when I brought home my first medium-priced car. I don't think the young fellows just starting out, who live in ing the price of a new one." most of those little house over there, are very different from what I was."

Is it the rising cost of cars, then, that has caused the drop in sales? To this question, once and now Ford and Breech reply antiphonally. They discuss the question, both Ford and Breech of labor seems to them by far the react sharply, but Ford again most significant. "There's a limit," says Ford, "after all, to the economies you can achieve by greater efficiency.

> 'Yes," says Breech, "we can't continue to throw away complete factories in order to build better ones: and since 1955 we just haven't been able to absorb the wage increases, so we've had to pass them on. The steel industry, and every other industry we buy from has passed on wage increases to us, too. And this year, there's no doubt, a lot of fellows decided to keep the car they had because they didn't feel like pay-

Ford. "As it is, there's no other industry in the country that takes the gamble we take, and I'd hate to tell you how much money we have to spend on taking it."

Ford means, of course, new models which must be designed and finally approved a full twenty-four months before the cars go to the dealers, so that the 1959 Ford, for instance, will reflect decesions taken in 1957. A major change of model is reputed to cost $200,000,000. But here no figures are given. Breech contents himself with remarking "just a face-lift nowadays costs twice what the first postwar Ford model cost us." Yet it is not so much the money as the time lag between decision and sale that seems to trouble these two men when they consider their gamble.

"For our new cars," says Breech, "the decision was made eighteen months ago. And the only question left is how many of them we can sell beginning six months from now.

"Yes, that's it," says Ford, and on this somewhat fatalistic note the meeting ends; and you depart reflecting that in an economy as vast as ours, what seem to be control centers may not really control, yet they impose on those who occupy them a staggering burden of responsibility that is pretty boldly borne.

Capital News Capsules Rebellious Rhee - The American Embassy is trying to keep President Syngman Rhee from following through on his offer to put the entire Korean Army, Air Force and Navy at the disposal of the Indonesian rebels. Old Rhee believes western countries which refuse to help the rebels are cowards who won't stand up against Communism when it counts. But the American Embassy, on instructions from John Foster Dulles, is urging him to take it easy. South Korean intervention in Indonesia, Rhee has been told, would bring in Red China, also North Indo-China, which might touch off a world

Mason objected to the fact that Sheehan supported some of Ike's legislative proposals. Apparently, Maso believes a Republican Congressman should not support a Republican President - if the President's name happens to be Eisenhower. Here are Mason's exact words to Sheehan: "I have lost all enthusiasm to give you any further help."

Elderly paratroopers - The Army rounded up several veterans from General Jim Gavin's old paratroop outfit to honor him as he retired the other day. The veterans, some of them over 40 years old, agreed to take a final jump for their wartime commander, landing dramatically in front of his reviewing stand. Some of them hadn't bailed out of a plane for 15 years, so when Gavin heard of it he refused to let the older veterans jump.

was Karl Mary and he looked like into fewer save the people of the world from the greed of the few. Capitalism. he said, is pregnant with the world of Communism.

He was a sick and angry man. The back of his neck was lumpy with carbuncles and much of his time was spent in illness. He was born in Germany of a middleclass Jewish family who became Christians. He deserted them and deserted both faiths. Herr Marx grew up to be one of the world's foremost exponents of the rationale—he wanted to be able to understand, and explain everything by reason. He had faith in

Karl was born at Trier on May 5, 1818. He studied law at Bonn and attended the University of Berlin. He was intelligent, truculent, impatient. He worked passionately, indefatigably, for the causes in which he believed. One of the things he believed was that the workers of the world were being exploited by the capitalists.

Somehow, between fights with illness and entrenched wealth, he fell in love with Jenny, daughter of the Baron von Westphalen. Everyone, it seemed, opposed the marriage. Marx married Jenny and wrote to a friend: "I can assure you without any sentimentality that I am in love from head to foot and in all serious-

He was a poor husband. Most of his honeymoon was spent in the libraries, jotting notes. Much of the rest of his life was spent being expelled from Germany, France and Belgium, and seeking sanctuary in England. Marx spent more time with his disciple, Friedrich Engels, than he did with Jenny. The first requisite for friendship with Marx was complete abasement and subordination. Engels, who is the co-deviser of modern Communism, wrote much of what is credited to Marx, but he has made the pages of history only as a postscript to his friend. Engels supported Marx when Karl would not seek a job, and he kept the Marx family rent paid when Karl was ill.

These two men shook the world. It is still shaking. Their major works are dull and complex: "The Communist Manifesto" and "Das Kapital." Marx

The father of Communism died and Engels exploited a brilliant 75 years ago. This is the diamond thesis, which was that the wealth jubilee of his demise. His name of the world moves progressively gigantic gamble of each year's Moses. He regarded himself as who, in turn squeeze the multian economic messiah come to tudinous workers (proletariat) by paying them less than they are

From this, Marx concluded that all history is a struggle between classes of people. Capitalism sells money; labor sells itself. He said that the world was sick and that the proletariat would rise and smash capitalism. He felt that true Communism would be born in the countries of the fat capitalists first: western Europe. It would happen last in the backward countries of serfs, such as

In 1851, Jenny turned against Karl. It was bad enough to be dispossessed from one nation after another, bad enough to be dispossessed from their little flat in Camberwell, England, but when two infants died mainly because Karl could not afford medical advice, this was too-

She lived with him, but she no longer loved him. He wore a dusty frock coat, a big watch chain, had a domed forehead and a full graying beard. He was haughty and contemptuous. His most casual observations sounded like the Dicta of Roman emperors. He advocated force and violence, and he called these the "mid-wife."

In 1881, Jenny died after fighting cancer for years. Karl was trying to write the second volume of "Das Kapital" and was living on $1,700 a year given to him by Friedrich Engels. The father of Communism was so sick with pleurisy that he could not attend the funeral of his wife. He lived two more years and died on a spring day in 1883. Today, Karl Marx is the cold clay god of millions of men and women. The world population, in 1956, was 2,406,000,000. As nearly as can be estimated, about 1,131,000,000 people live under Communism. They worship Marx, but they do not practice what he preached.

Neither their politics nor their economics are Marxian. They live under monolithic socialisma diluted form of Nazism. Perhaps that is why the men in the Kremlin ordere: no observation of the 75th anniversary of Karl Marx' death. They owe him nothing but two confusing books.

Protect their precious future now

Like most young fathers, as soon as your children were born, you probably began to think more seriously about your family's future. You began to plan how you could make sure that they would have a secure home and an education, even if something should happen to you.

The time when children are young, however, is usually the time when the family income is far from ample . . . and the cost of the usual permanent insurance may look quite large. That is why Metropolitan has developed a special life insurance policy called the RPG-5.

This simply means that reduced premiums are guaranteed for the first five years. When the five years are up the premiums will increase to the level where they will remain for the life of the policy...but this increase may be offset by future dividends.

So here is an opportunity to get the full, permanent form of protection that your family needs . . . at a lower initial premium rate which may better fit your budget.

This is a perfect policy for the family man whose income hasn't quite caught up with his talents. It has all the cash and loan values that make permanent insurance such a wise investment.

Call your Metropolitan Representative today and ask him about the RPG-5. He will welcome the chance to explain this valuable policy . . . and to show that

Weakness Of Pump-Priming

Where the final emphasis will be in federal efforts to combat slow economic times-whether in reduced taxes or in a vastly expanded public works program—has not yet developed. But the thinking of students of government is largely toward a tax cut, skillfully applied to produce maximum stimulative results.

As for vast public works programs, Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois points out that they are hard to complete during recessionary times for which they may be designed and that they tend to be self-perpetuating.

Similarly, Douglas goes on, suppliers of materials and services come to think that they, too, have a vested interest in public works in good times and bad.

"Once the government starts a program of expenditures," cautions the Senator, "it builds up tremendous pressure groups. These groups resist having the programs turned off in the automatic way that economists prescribe.'

In commenting on the make-work approach to invigorating the national economy, President Eisenhower said:

"It is not effective. Experience shows that too much of this sort of make-work activity tends to supplant rather than to supplement private activity. It dulls the edge of private initiative. It builds up a huge bureaucracy. And it threatens to turn a temporary recession into a long-term economic headache.

These arguments are the more forceful in light of the spending of many billions of dollars for Jublic works during the depression 1930s. Despite that, 10 million persons remained unemployed until World War II started a new

Foreign Cars

The American automobile industry has generally taken the position that it required no tariff because contrast between the two leaders car. I don't think the young felit had no competition from foreign cars. It so of this giant industry. the world's prime market for automobiles, that it required little more than advertising to be successful. Nevertheless there have been over 100 automobile manufacturing companies in the United States, of which only four or five remain. I look at a list of the officers of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers in 1911 and they represent the Pierce-Arrow, the Locomobile, the Pope-not one of which remains in the business today. The Packard, which was a fancy car, sold for as high as $5,750. There were plenty of cheap cars to meet every pocketbook. The cheapest and best-selling car was the Ford.

However, the American car is giving the appearance in 1958 of having outpriced itself even in the American market. A commodity is outpriced not when accountants, statisticians and economists say that it is or it is not, but when the consumer decides to look for something else. All sorts of European cars are being brought into this country, built in Europe by European labor and using European materials, paying European taxes, but some of them employing American capital and, to a degree, American management.

Let us read the facts about the advertisement of "The Unique Opel Car." It says that this is "From German Skills and German Ingenuity." This is "a General Motors car designed and built in Germany" and is "Sold and Serviced in U. S. Only by Authorized

There is nothing objectionable or wrong about any of this, except that the automobile industry is one that has been hardest hit by the current depression. Neither Walter Reuther who runs the industry from the labor unions nor American automobile management seems to care anything about the danger of the foreign car invasion which is growing by leaps and bounds. Reuther is so busy being a statesman that he is missing the fact that what his workers need is work, not running the Democratic Party; management is set in its ways and undoubtedly is in need of a managerial revolution.

The large American automobile companies, faced by the necessity of using blocked currencies abroad, naturally invested their money in their own industry. They took over European automobile companies. When labor costs and taxes outpriced the American automobile in world markets, it proved to be very good business to manufacture in lower wage and lower tax countries for export purposes. The British Ford, Opel, and other European cars made considerable progress in world markets. Now Russian cars are coming in, priced according to local market conditions. As the principal cost in manufacturing an automobile is the labor cost, cheaper wages can always defeat higher wages, particularly if the quality and the styling are just as good or better. Walter Reuther recently came up with a gimmick program, not very profound, to reduce the cost of the American car, but he said nothing about reducing wages or abolishing some of the costly union restrictions upon automation which are characteristic of this industry.

The results are beginning to show. Look at the cars roll by. Notice that one that looks different from any car you are accustomed to. It's a Volkswagen, a German car, becoming increasingly popular throughout the world because it is cheap to buy and cheap to run. When it first appeared in America, it was said that it would never get anywhere because it is too small for the American figure and personality. However, it is doing surprisingly well in this market.

And now the Rolls Royce, queen of cars, traditionally only for millionaires, and also traditionally looking like an ancient dowager gazing upon plebeians through her lorgnette is being made up in form and shape to look like an American car, fit for the pretty girl who is dressed accordingly.

Yes, they are all coming in and the foreign cars have their showrooms on Park Avenue in New York, ready for American customers, to compete with American wages and American taxes. And some of these cars even have American subsidies, through foreign aid programs.

State Department Seems Stymied In Near East For Lack Of Policy

WASHINGTON - In a recent closed-door session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Humphrey of Minnesota wa. quizzing Assistant Secretary of State William Rountree about the Middle East.

"How are you planning to rescue American prestige in the Middle East?" Humphrey asked. "What are your plans for combatting Nasser's growing power?" Reluctantly Rountree admitted that the State Department had

"What!" shot back Senator Humphrey. "You're letting the oil companies run the policy of the United States? I want you to know that the Senate o. the United States does not want our policies dictated by a few oil companies on the basis of money.

"We have given all kinds of support to the oil companies. We have practically supported the country of Iran. There is no reason why we should have them tell

u. what to do. "Our pussyfooting, procrastinating policies, have let the whole Near East fall away from us," continued Hu.nphrey, "and now you tell me that the oil companies say we can't build a pipeline from Iran across Turkey to safeguard us in case of war."

Problems In The Car Industry's Control Tower

DEARBORN, Mich. In a patch of green countryside not yet engulfed by the industrial-suburban sprawl, the glass, marble and metal tower springs cleanly upwards, elegantly functional, aseptically pure. And in the tower's topmost rooms, where the wide windows offer an enormous view. there are the adjoining offices of the two men who guide the destinies of the Ford Motor Co.,

Breech. You enter with a lively curiosity, for here, surely, is one of the control centers of the faltering American economy. The first thing that strikes you is the odd shrewd practicality that you expect in a self-made man. Wheresmith's son and started his verallows an occasional visionary tional executive briskness.

The topic is the problems of the motor industry, the governor of the American economy, in a period of disturbing economic pause. At Ford's request, Breech leads off with a short historical review, culminating at the moment when the post-war seller's market turned into a buyer's

"When we sold eight million cars in 1955," says Breech with decisive frankness, "it made the whole industry think that maybe the ten-million-car-year was coming before too long. So everyone decided more new plants were needed than were really needed, and started out building all those

The steel industry, and every other industry we buy from has passed on wage increases to us, too. And this year, there's no doubt, a lot of fellows because they didn't feel like pay-

'What else can we do?'' asks Ford. "As it is, there's no other industry in the country that takes the gamble we take, and I'd hate to tell you how much money we have to spend on taking it.'

Ford means, of course, the new models which must be designed and finally approved a full twenty-four months before the cars go to the dealers, so that the 1959 Ford, for instance, will reflect decesions taken in 1957. A major change of model is reputed to cost $200,000,000. But here no figures are given. Breech contents himself with remarking that "just a face-lift nowadays costs twice what the first postwar Ford model cost us." Yet it is not so much the money as the time lag between decision and sale that seems to trouble these two men when they consider their gamble.

"For our new cars," says Breech, "the decision was made eighteen months ago. And the only question left is how many of them we can sell beginning six months from now.

"Yes, that's it," says Ford, and on this somewhat fatalistic note the meeting ends; and you depart reflecting that in an economy as vast as ours, what seem to be control centers may not really control, yet they impose on those who occupy them a staggering burden of responsibility that is

Fooling The Public

A report on how the American public has contributed millions of dollars, allegedly for handicapped veterans, is about to be issued by Congressman Olin Teague of Texas.

Teague will tell how the National Association of Veterans Employment Councils sold ballpoint pens through the mails, ostensibly for money to help disabled veterans find jobs.

Teague's investigators found that the NAVEC, headed by Harold Keats, located jobs for only 180 veterans-though in 21/2 years it collected a cool $3,000.000.

Teague will have stern words also for the Disabled American Veterans, which last year collected $4,000,000 from the American people by selling miniature automobile license tags for key chains. After collecting the $4,-000,000, on the grounds that it would be used for charity to disabled vets, the DAV used part o the money to produce the Hidden Treasure television show, on which $300,000 was lost.

Incidentally, the license-tag idea was sold to the DAV several years ago for $3,000,000 by Abraham Koolish, now under federal indictment in Chicago for mail fraud in connection with his various fund-raising activities.

Congressman Teague has found so much abuse in fund raising for veterans that he has urged the House Government Operations Committee to look into the entire field of tax-exempt charitable money raising. He will urge a nev. law making it a federal offense to sell or rent "sucker lists" of people who have contributed to one charity and are considered soft touches for other allegedly good causes.

Capital News Capsules Rebellious Rhee - The American Embassy is trying to keep President Syngman Rhee from following through on his offer to put the entire Korean Army, Air Force and Navy at the disposal of the Indonesian rebels. Old Rhee believes western countries which refuse to help the rebels are cowards who won't stand up against Communism when it counts. But the American Embassy, on instructions from John Foster Dulles, is urging him to take it easy. South Korean intervention in Indonesia. Rhee has been told, would bring in Red China, also North Indo-China, which might touch off a world

Sour on Ike - - Believe it or net, but Congressman Noah Mason, dean of Illinois Republicans in Congress, has cracked down on Congressman Tim Sheehan of Chicago, also Republican, for being too pro-Eisenhower. Mason objected to the fact that Sheehan supported some of Ike's legislative proposals. Apparently, Maso believes a Republican Congressman should not support a Republican President - if the President's name happens to be Eisenhower. Here are Mason's exact words to Sheehan: "I have lost all enthusiasm to give you any further help.'

Elderly paratroopers - The Army rounded up several veterans from General Jim Gavin's old paratroop outfit to honor him as he retired the other day. The veterans, some of the n over 40 years old, agreed to take a final jump for their wartime commander, landing dramatically in front of his reviewing stand. Some of them hadn't bailed out of a plane for 15 years, so when Gavin heard of it he refused to let the oider veterans jump.

gigantic gamble of each year's Moses. He regarded himself as the greed of the few. Capitalism, he said, is pregnant with the world of Communism.

He was a sick and angry man. The back of his neck was lumpy with carbuncles and much of his time was spent in illness. He was born in Germany of a middleclass Jewish family who became Christians. He deserted them and deserted both faiths. Herr Marx grew up to be one of the world's foremost exponents of the rationale-he wanted to be able to understand, and explain everything by reason. He had faith in nothing.

Karl was born at Trier on May 5, 1818. He studied law at Bonn and attended the University of Berlin. He was intelligent, truculent, impatient. He worked passionately, indefatigably, for the causes in which he believed. One of the things he believed was that the workers of the world were being exploited by the capitalists.

Somehow, between fights with illness and entrenched wealth, he fell in love with Jenny, daughter of the Baron von Westphalen. Everyone, it seemed, opposed the marriage. Marx married Jenny and wrote to a friend: "I can assure you without any sentimentality that I am in love from head to foot and in all serious-

He was a poor husband. Most of his honeymoon was spent in the libraries, jotting notes. Much of the rest of his life was spent being expelled from Germany, France and Belgium, and seeking sanctuary in England. Marx spent more time with his disciple, Friedrich Engels, than he did with Jenny.

The first requisite for friendship with Marx was complete abasement and subordination. Engels, who is the co-deviser of modern Communism, wrote much of what is credited to Marx, but he has made the pages of history only as a postscript to his friend. Engels supported Marx when Karl would not seek a job, and he kept the Marx family rent paid when Karl was ill.

These two men shook the world. It is still shaking. Their major works are dull and complex: "The Communist Manifesto" and "Das Kapital." Marx

The father of Communism died and Engels exploited a brilliant 75 years ago. This is the diamond thesis, which was that the wealth jubilee of his demise. His name of the world moves progressively was Karl Marx and he looked like into fewer hands (capitalists) who in turn squeeze the n an economic messiah come to tudinous workers (proletariat) by save the people of the world from paying them less than they are

From this, Marx concluded that all history is a struggle between classes of people. Capitalism sells money; labor sells itself. He said that the world was sick and that the proletariat would rise and smash capitalism. He felt that true Communism would be born in the countries of the fat capitalists first: western Europe. It would happen last in the backward countries of serfs, such as

In 1851, Jenn: turned against Karl. It was bad enough to be dispossessed from one nation after another, bad enough to be dispossessed from their little flat! in Camberwell, England, but when two infants died mainly because Karl could not afford medical advice, this was too-

She lived with him, but she no longer loved him. He wore a dusty frock coat, a big watch chain, had a domed forehead and a full graying beard. He was haughty and contemptuous. His most casual observations sounded like the Dicta of Roman emperors. He advocated force and violence, and he called these the "mid-wife."

In 1881, Jenny died after fighting cancer for years. Karl was trying to write the second volume of "Das Kapital" and was living on $1,700 a year given to him by Friedrich Engels. The father of Communism was so sick with pleurisy that he could not attend the funeral of his wife. He lived two more years and died on a spring day in 1883. Today, Karl Marx is the cold clay god of millions of men and women. The world population, in 1956, was 2,406,000,000. As nearly as can be estimated, about 1,131,000,000 people live under Communism. They worship Marx, but they do not practice what he preached.

Neither their politics nor their economics are Marxian. They live under monolithic socialisma diluted form of Nazism. Perhaps that is why the men in the Kremlin ordere: no observation of the 75th anniversary of Karl Marx' death. They owe him nothing but two confusing books.

A.—While a bid of four spades would be accepted as correct, my own preference is for a raise to three no trump. While ordinarily with a doubleton and four trumps the major suit game is preferred, the doubleton, in this case, includes two high cards and since it is not improbable that part.

since it is not improbable that part-ner has the king of that suit the short suit will probably not come into play. Hands of this type frequently reach for nine tricks but not for 10, particularly if spades happen to break badly. (Copyright 1958: The Chicago Tribune)

A.—Partner has shown a strong hand by rebidding at the level of three and your hand has bright prospects. A mere preference bid of three hearts even though in combination with the two diamond response and therefore an aggressive sequence, would not do justice to the holding, and the recommended bid is four hearts. No fear should be entertained that partner has a four card heart suit. Holding four hearts and four clubs, partner would no doubt have opened with one club.

What action do you take?

A.—Some drastic step is indicated inasmuch as you have passed a hand which contains the ingredients of an optional opening bid. You are now presented with a choice of jumping to two no trump or to three spades. The latter bid normally requires four trumps but after a previous pass, the double raise may occasionally be given with only three. We cannot accept two hearts as the proper call, though it would have been in the absence of a previous pass.
